Announcing growth in GCC membership

The Global Cooksafe Coalition has launched in the UK!

We're thrilled to see more leaders joining us in this unprecedented alliance of global property developers, world-renowned chefs, public health and climate experts. Together, we're working to ensure we can all breathe clean air in our kitchens thanks to electric cooking.

We're excited to see the Global Cooksafe continue to grow! ⚡

As members of the Global Cooksafe Coalition, we welcome new companies and organisations from across Europe and the UK who are working to achieve fossil fuel-free cooking for everyone.

We're joined by Grosvenor Property UK, Lendlease Europe, UK Green Building Council, Environmental Coalition on Standards, End Fuel Poverty Coalition, International Society of Doctors for the Environment (Italy), Global Action Plan, BRE Group and British Safety Council, as well as a host of renowned chefs.

By transitioning to electric cooking, we can better protect our health and the planet.

Discussing the event

This week, we're celebrating the launch of the Global Cooksafe Coalition in the UK.

We're excited for more major organisations and companies to join us in our work to promote electric cooking as a healthier and more sustainable solution.

At the launch event in London, leading UK chefs Douglas McMaster, John Chantarasak and Chantelle Nicholson showcased the power of induction and experts on public health and sustainable building spoke about the importance of transitioning away from gas.
